Supervisor Feedback & Recommendations to Student/s:

I arrived while STUDENT was finishing lunch period. She was already in the classroom getting things ready for when the students returned from lunch.

STUDENT brought the students in and had them go to the rug. They were well behaved. She then taught a math lesson.

Since this is still early in the school year, I was impressed with the way she kept reminding the students about the desired classroom procedures, with prompts and practice until the procedures are established with the students. She was able to remind about behavior and procedures while continuing with the lesson.

I thought it was very brave of STUDENT to take the students outside to conduct a math activity, while still training the students so closely. But she did it. The students were excited to be going outside to do an activity and STUDENT went through the directions before they went out.

This was a great way for them to actively be a part of the lesson, and will help them remember the information.

During the activity I think that they followed the procedures pretty well that were specified by STUDENT before starting the activity. They were noisy, but that is expected with this active participation. The important thing was that they were engaged in active learning.
